Dear Ms. Trinidad:

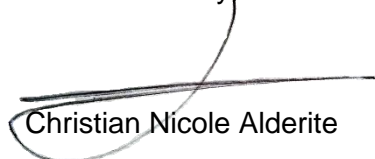

Greetings in St. La Salle!

Recently, I received a failing grade in my THS-IT1 (IT Thesis One) subject. This was due to our group's failure to make the 80% completion target of our thesis project which, in fairness, had a scope that is larger than usual projects, which is a fault on our part because we promised to accomplish as much. This project was a Loans Management System with Documents and Content Management that will be used by the DLSU Faculty Association. Prior to the defense, we were already advised by our thesis adviser Ms. Marivic Tangkeko that our completion of the thesis will not reach the promised 80% completion in time and advised us that we do not schedule a defense but rather devote the rest of the time improving upon the project.

From her advice we decided not to schedule a defense, but the action was done too late however, as we were weeks into the term that we can no longer drop any of our subjects. However, we did not regret taking our adviser's advice for in that term only a few people from our block ever passed thesis, forcing most of us to retake it this term. Right after we took our adviser's advice, we consulted with the rest of our thesis panel, most of which reaffirmed our adviser's previous comments. We took their recommendations in mind and decided to revamp our project promising to bring it to completion this term so only minor revisions and tweaks to our project will be done next term.

Our group is working hard to deliver the completion of this project despite the many pressures on from heavy subjects (IT Business Intelligence and IT Technopreneurship) and preparing for internship, tasks that were supposed to be taken/done at the same time with THS-IT2 - a lighter thesis phase dedicated to minor tweaks in the system. I am aware that this is the second time I have failed a subject, the first one being PROBSTA (IT Probability and Statistics), and I apologize for my shortcomings. I hope for your kind consideration and ask of you to believe in me as well as I give my best in completing this second to the last hurdle I need to surpass before I can finally graduate as a Lasallian.

Yours Sincerely

Christian Nicole Alderite
